

BalancingAct

Chris Adams is president of Balancing Act and a Senior Fellow at the University of Colorado School of Public Affairs. He has worked in public policy for over 25 years, with a focus since 2007 on online budget simulations. He has published more than 40 essays in publications including The Los Angeles Times, New York Newsday, The Christian Science Monitor, The San Francisco Chronicle and many others. He is a graduate of Yale University and the University of Colorado.